JAPANESE PAY
HEAVY PRICE
AT MILNE BAY

Troops Landed on
New Guinea. Closer to Australian Mainland.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—The spreading battle of the Pacific rolled closer to the Australian mainland today as Japanese invaders paid heavily for a heavily contested landing on the northeastern tip of New Guinea.

American air power put off the Japanese invasion fleet to flight off the coast and inflicted heavy losses on another Japanese transport. The strategic Solomons, allied troops and planes 600 miles to the west joined battle with a force of Japanese marines landed from a small convoy at Milne Bay.

Transport Destroyed
Heavy allied air action, General MacArthur's headquarters announced, destroyed an enemy transport, six landing barges and battered a cruiser off Milne Bay. Medium bombers and fighters also raked the Japanese barges and supplies straggling landing troops and landed many fires.

The navy, meantime, termed the continuous action in the Solomons "encouraging" with at least 13 Japanese ships damaged in the vain effort to recapture the bases held by U. S. marines.

The enemy landing in New Guinea, circling around the mountains that had barred an overland advance southward, obviously increased the threat to the Australian mainland, less than 500 miles distant. The landing was not unexpected for allied observers theorized the Japanese would attempt the move to Port Moresby, the strongest allied New Guinea base, 230 miles to the northwest.

Good Jap Base
Establishment of a strong air base at Milne Bay, a bomber base and a string of Australian mainland industries, cities and the Coral Sea to the south, would serve as a center for further attacks in the Solomons. Buna, apparent springboard for the advance of the small Japanese force, was reported destroyed and damaged. Thirteen enemy ships were reported destroyed and 100 Japanese soldiers killed.

The Japanese navy disclosed that the sea battle was still in progress with the outcome still in doubt. Renewal of the conflict was expected in a few days, American bombers set two enemy destroyers on fire and pounced upon transporters and destroyers of the Japanese fleet forcing it to retreat from approaches to Milne Bay.

Japanese naval force, moving to the northeast, is involved in a major sea battle with American carriers and battleships. The Japanese are the target of American bombers and fighters.

KAISER SHIP CO.
FACES CHARGE

West Coast Concern and Cleveland Firm Named in Court Action.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, Aug. 27—The Kaiser Co., Inc., headed by the west coast shipbuilder, Henry J. Kaiser, and a Cleveland concern, were restrained by a federal court order today from further alleged violations of OPA price ceilings on steel.

The temporary restraining order, signed by Federal District Judge Robert N. Wilkin at the request of the office of price administration, named the Kaiser concern and the Builders Structural Steel Co. of Cleveland.

James C. Gruener, regional OPA attorney, declared the Kaiser Co. purchased from the Cleveland concern 504,000 pounds of steel on one order, but which he said was shipped in less than carload lots to evade OPA's price maximums.

The order was given in mid-July, Gruener said and added in a statement: "In purchasing this steel on an illegal market, the Kaiser Co., Inc., has branded itself as a scoff-law participant in the illegal transactions cited in the court order."

In its order, the court directed the Kaiser concern to refrain from further sales of steel, and to refrain from further purchases of steel, and to refrain from further sales of steel.

The Builders Structural Steel Co., for its part, has taken advantage of the war-made steel.

Eleven Members of Local Club
Will Compete in Top
Target Event.

Eleven members of the Marion Gun club, including ten Marion county men, will compete today, Friday and Saturday in the Grand American Handicap trapshoot at Vandalla, 10 miles north of Dayton.

Rev. Garrison Rebeck, pastor of the First United Brethren church and 1931 winner of the Grand American title with a score of 96 out of a possible 100, decided only last week not to enter this year's journey. He had practiced with members of the Marion Gun club several times this summer in preparation for again entering the Grand American.

Never in the history of the 33-year-old shoot has a champion repeated. And only three times has a big name shooter ever won.

HIGH MARK MADE BY MARION GUNNER

Breaking 198 out of a possible 200 targets, John H. Hinklin of 140 West Walnut street, placed near the top in the Class A shoot of yesterday's Grand American class contest. Hinklin was one of three Class A competitors to break 198. Two others tied at 199.

The title has been won by some unknown in every other shoot. Representing the Marion Gun club at the big matches will be Ray Reichenbach, John H. Hinklin, Dr. R. D. Miller, M. C. Richmond, W. A. Cook, G. F. Dornay, Sam Kearns, E. H. Huggins, all of Marion, W. C. Underwood of near Caledonia, H. A. Lauer of near Prospect and Fred Stuckey of Upper Sandusky.

All of the Marion men have shot in previous Grand American. Throughout the spring and summer months the local gun club has staged practice and registered shoots as preliminary matches to the Vandalla shoot. In order to participate in the Grand American each entrant must have participated in at least five registered shoots.

This year for the first time in the forty-three year history of the Grand American, shooters will compete over a 200 shot route. Supporters of the 200-shot route have contended for several years that too many times the Grand American, worth $1,000 or more to the winner, has been won by a shooter who is unusually "hot" on one day. Because of this contention the 200-shot plan was invoked this year. One hundred shots will be fired by each entry on two different days.

Since Monday America's leading trapshooters have been firing away at Vandalla at a dozen or more national titles. The Grand American to be decided today and Saturday is the biggest prize.

The Grand American is likely to be one sport which will be staged throughout the duration. The type of shot and explosives used for trapshooting is not the type used in war munitions.

Soviet Bombers Reach Berlin on Bomb Raid

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts). Aug. 27—One of several Soviet planes, raising Germany last night succeeded in reaching the outskirts of Berlin, the German radio said today.

(A Stockholm report broadcast by the British radio and heard in New York by CBS said five Russian bombers reached Berlin.)

The German high command's communique said Soviet bombers "carried out flights of no military importance over eastern Germany," and that single British planes flew over western and northwestern Germany yesterday.

FIELD WORKOUT
SET FOR CO. H

Marion State Guard Unit To Start Training Program
Sunday.

Plans for the first of a series of monthly field exercise programs and inauguration of a non-commissioned officers training course for members of Co. H, 2nd Infantry of the Ohio State Guard, were announced today by Capt. Carl F. Ebert, commanding officer.

Guard members will assemble at 10 a. m. Sunday at the armory for their first field workout. They will move at 11 a. m. with full equipment for the Uncapher farm south of Marion on the Banks road. Army mess will be served at noon and at 1 p. m. the members will go into combat practice under the direction of Lieut. E. E. Smith. They will return to the armory at 2 p. m.

Training directives for weekly sessions of the non-commissioned officers course have been received by Captain Ebert from the adjutant general's office in Columbus. The classes will be held each Monday at 7 p. m. at the armory and will consist of training in special fields.

All members of the guard will be eligible to take the course, which is to include training in scouting, intelligence work, use of sub-machine guns and supply problems. Those taking the course also will carry on correspondence work with the state headquarters.

Regular training sessions of Co. H will be held on the same weekly schedule, with members meeting each Tuesday at 7 p. m. for a two-hour session at the armory.

JAP FORCES LAND
AT NEW GUINEA BAY

Gain Foothold Despite Heavy Allied Air Attack.

By The Associated Press
GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Aug. 27—Japanese forces defying fierce allied air attacks and a tropical deluge, landed yesterday at Milne Bay, on the southwest tip of New Guinea, but allied spokesmen said that the landing had been anticipated and that the enemy had been engaged immediately by allied ground forces.

The bay, about 10 miles wide at its mouth and 20 miles long, is at the tip of Papua some 225 miles from allied-held Port Moresby—apparently Japan's first aim—and about 420 miles from the closest point on the Australian mainland.

The coast there is flat, fringed with mangrove swamps and cut by several creeks abounding with crocodiles.

Besides pounding the ships and landing barges which ferried the invaders ashore, allied fliers caused the Japanese heavy losses of fuel, some fuel drums, which the Japanese tried to conceal below water, were struck from low level, and the fires spread over a wide area.

Allied planes were hampered by thick clouds which cut the ceiling to 1,000 feet and a downpour which cut visibility almost to zero.

Red Central Front Army
Drives on Nazi Railway

Section 120 Miles West of Moscow Target of Russian Drive.
Report Street Fighting.

By The Associated Press
MOSCOW, Aug. 27—While Stalingrad battled doggedly for its life, Russia's central front armies slashed at the German-held Rzhev-Vyazma railway 120 miles west of Moscow today and fought for footholds within the city limits of Rzhev in a newly announced offensive that has pushed back a Nazi salient 25 or 30 miles.

(Reuters, British news agency, reported the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into the savage battle for Rzhev but were compelled to retreat with heavy losses as the Red army thrust westward.)

Although the situation of Stalingrad, industrial city on the lower Volga, was considered as critical, the Russians described it as "no worse" than counterattacks were developed.

Caucasus Situation Serious
German gains in the central Caucasus, however, drew expressions of concern. A tank-led task force fought its way to Mordok, 30 miles east of the Prokhladnensk battle grounds and a jumping-off point for thrusts both toward the oil fields of Grozny, 55 miles to the east, and to the Georgian military terminal at Ordzhonikidze, 40 miles to the south.

The 15-day Russian drive on the central front was intended both to eliminate a long-standing German threat to Moscow in the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma triangle and provide a diversion against the German offensive to the south.

"In another sector," the mid-day communique announced, "our troops destroyed three heavy German tanks and killed about 400 enemy officers and men. Booty was captured and prisoners were taken."

The army newspaper Red Star declared Soviet vanguards had reached the Rzhev-Vyazma railway, a Nazi north-south supply line 120 miles west of Moscow and that heavily fortified Rzhev was under attack.

While this action developed on a 70-mile front, the Russians admitted the Germans had lanced 30 miles closer to the Grozny oil fields in the central Caucasus.

Summary of Situation
The situation along the 1,375-mile battlefield extending from north of Rzhev to Mordok was pictured here as follows:

West and northwest of Moscow. Troops of Gen. Gregory Zhukov and Col. Gen. Ivan Konev sought three immediate objectives: Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow; Gzhatsk, 95 miles west of the capital, and Vyazma, 140 miles southwest.

Rzhev: The Russians edged forward into the northern district of the city, meeting stubborn Nazi resistance in street fighting. Sycenka, 20 miles south of Rzhev: Red army units which drove through Zubtsov reached the rail line connecting Rzhev and Vyazma and are hammering at the city's gates.

Gzhatsk: The Russians crossed the Gzhatsk river and drove into fresh reinforced Germans. Latest dispatches from this general area said the Russians were fighting to win back a number of populated places, all heavily fortified.

At Zubtsov, just southeast of Rzhev, and eastward at Pozorye-Gorodische, Soviet life was being restored after 10 months of Nazi control. Karamanovo also was liberated in this sector.

ROUND UP ALL JEWS
By The Associated Press
VICHY, Aug. 27—The German-controlled Vichy France government has issued a decree that all Jews who entered France since 1933 are to be rounded up in the unoccupied zone and will be deported today.

Lt. Samuel Junkin, Jr., (above), of Nether, Miss., was the first U. S. fighter plane pilot to shoot down a Nazi plane in combat. The U. S. army headquarters in Britain announced the action occurred during the Dieppe raid. Junkin, 27, was wounded and forced to jump from his disabled plane, but was rescued by naval craft.

Civilian Defense Units Hold
First General Mobilization

Telephone Calls Used To Assemble Marion Groups;
Results Called Fairly Successful.

First general mobilization of Marion's civilian defense units was carried out last night under the direction of Coordinator William H. Martin, who termed the test "fairly successful" and announced plans for another within the next week.

Telephone summons to six divisional chiefs at 7 p. m. got last night's mobilization under way. Within 20 minutes the chiefs, with one exception, were at their posts in the central headquarters at the North State street school.

Telephone Used
The chiefs summoned their subordinates by telephone, with the latter in turn notifying members of their personnel. After the mobilization was in progress, the staff worked out problems arising from 15 simulated emergencies.

Alarms and sirens of the Second and sixth wards and staffs of the auxiliary police and emergency medical units mobilized with greatest haste. This was the target of special praise from Coordinator Martin.

RUSSIANS HIT
NAZIS HARD ON MOSCOW FRONT

25 to 30 Miles Regained; Reds
Also Hold Firm at Stalingrad.

By The Associated Press
Russia's scorching counter-offensive on the Moscow front, which has already halted the Germans back 25 to 30 miles, and "encouraging" reports of the flaming new battle of the Solomons islands reflected a sharply brighter trend for the allies in the global war today.

Moreover, Adolf Hitler's furious drive against Stalingrad appeared to have been at least temporarily checked as Red army headquarters announced:

"We are holding the enemy onslaught and wounding down his manpower."

German field headquarters admitted that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's armies had launched bitter counter-attacks against Nazi positions west of Stalingrad, but asserted they had been driven off with great losses under German aerial attack.

The Germans also acknowledged heavy Russian assaults on the central front.

New Nazi Break-through
A Vichy (French) radio broadcast said the Germans executed a new break-through northwest of Stalingrad and advanced within 31 miles of the Imperial Volga metropolis, but Soviet dispatches said the thrust had been wiped out.

A few German tanks succeeded in penetrating into the depth of our defense. They were destroyed by hand grenades and incendiary bottles," the Russian command said.

In the Moscow region, Soviet dispatches said the Red armies of Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov were driving westward on a 70-mile front, seizing village after village in a 15-day-old assault that has left 45,000 German dead on the battlefield and recaptured 410 communities.

Front-line dispatches said the Russians were attacking the German-held Rzhev-Vyazma rail line 120 miles west of Moscow and were battling in the streets of the key Nazi stronghold at Rzhev.

Reuters, the British news agency, said the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into the three battle for Rzhev, but were compelled to retreat with heavy losses.

The Russians conceded that the situation remained critical but "no worse" around Stalingrad. There was no confirmation of a Vichy radio report that German vanguards had reached the Volga river at Dubovka, 10 miles northwest of the city.

Far to the south, tank-led Nazi columns killed 40 miles closer to the rich Grozny oil fields, reaching the town of Mordok 55 miles west of Grozny at the approach of the Georgian military highway to the middle east.

Great Test of 1942
From the hot sands of Egypt to the war-wasted provinces of east China there came indications that the struggle of allies-versus-axis was entering a final great test phase of 1942.

Egypt—Dispatches from Cairo said the desert front, quiet for two months, was apparently on the verge of exploding into a major renewal of the battle in the El Alamein sector, 80 miles west of Alexandria.

China—Further Japanese withdrawals in Chekiang and Kiang provinces, evidently to prepare for action elsewhere, in the far Pacific, were reported as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese armies pressed a vigorous counter-offensive to regain "bomb" Japan's bases.

Meanwhile, Tokyo Imperial headquarters acknowledged for the first time that the Japanese fleet had suffered damage in a battle with "reinforcements" of the United States navy off the Solomon Islands hours after the navy in Washington announced damaging blows to at least 13 Japanese warships; the Japanese command conceded that one of its destroyers had been sunk and a small aircraft carrier damaged.

Tokyo headquarters said United States losses in the first three days of battle, starting Sunday, including damage to two aircraft carriers and to a battleship of the 32,100-ton Pennsylvania type.

The claims lacked confirmation elsewhere.

Bulletins, Contradictory
"Imperial air units repulsed the enemy," the Japanese communique asserted, in contrast to a U. S. navy bulletin, which declared that American bombers had driven one Japanese fleet into retreat from the approaches to Guadalcanal in the southwest Solomons and that another Japanese fleet was being driven off.

Sabatn pointed out that every bill and resolution not disposed of when the present session of congress ends in the first week of January automatically is dead and "there will be a lot of them not acted on."

Kenneth Roberts' Story of the Original Rangers

(Not until the big Allied raid on Dieppe did many Americans know a new unit was building in the AEP—the Rangers. Like the British commandos, they were trained to strike swiftly, silently, efficiently, but they took their name from a much earlier band of American fighting men. In the following story, Kenneth Roberts, author of "Northwest Passage" and other historical novels, tells how Rogers' Rangers were created, and how they fought against the French and Indians before the Revolutionary War.)

By KENNETH ROBERTS

Copyright, 1942, By Wide World Features

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., Aug. 26—Robert Rogers, a hard drinking, hard fighting, hell raising, indefatigable, indestructible woodsman and hunter who was born and brought up near Concord, N. H., formed his first company of Rangers in 1755 to fight off the French and their Indian allies' attempt to become masters of North America.

To fight these enemies on their own terms meant to drift like an owl through the forest, to take cover on mountain slopes, on the shore of lakes and streams, in ditches and in open fields, to steal up on enemy outposts under cover of darkness, to spirit away sentries, to ambush supply trains, to burn enemy boats, forts, storehouses, towns, to kill every Frenchman and Indian who couldn't be used as a source of information—kill him with a bullet in his heart, a hatchet through his skull, a strip of rawhide around his neck, a knife in his back, the butt of a musket behind his ear, a knee in his groin, or by ten calloused fingers around his throat.

Only Rogers Did It

In the ensuing six years, expensive and elaborately equipped British and Colonial armies fought under British generals on Lake Champlain and in Canada, straining and struggling to break the determined attempt of the French and the Indians to overrun New England and the fabulous, little known empire partly glimpsed by those who had explored the valley of the Ohio and the Mississippi.

Some of those British generals were able; some were stupid and shortsighted, but not one of them knew how to train fighters who could meet the French and Indians on their own terms. Only Robert Rogers seemed able to do this, and even the most inept British generals recognized that fact. Thus Rogers' Rangers grew from one company in 1755 to eight companies before the war was over in 1760; and those eight companies of Rogers were the eyes, the ears, the flashing spearheads and the avenging furies of the armies that eventually drove the French from North America.

Journal Tells Story

Rogers kept a journal of his raids and fights, and those journals were published in England in 1765. On the yellowed pages of that ancient book are set down the bare bones of an unbeatable sort of war that struck the English as being new and startling, but that in reality was old as the hills, and will always be as good and as unbeatable as it ever was.

Rogers wrote the rules for the Rangers—28 of them. To name a few, they were to be constantly and fully equipped with rifle, ammunition and food, and ready to march at a minute's warning.

They were to march in single

VINTAGE 1755—Nothing was too tough for the Rogers' Rangers to overcome. This scene from the historical film "Northwest Passage" shows how they looked. Like modern soldiers they knew value of camouflage, wore blending uniforms of green.

files with flankers, so that in case of attack the fewest possible number would be hit.

Prisoners were to be kept separate till examined.

When attacked, all Rangers were to lie down, to keep behind trees and rocks, or in holes in the ground and to return the enemy's fire in sections, so that the whole detachment would never be defenseless at any given moment.

If hopelessly surrounded, the detachment was to scatter and reassemble later at a predetermined point.

Sentries were so stationed that night-changing was unnecessary—"profound secrecy and silence being of the greatest importance."

The whole detachment was to be awake and ready at dawn, "that being the time when savages chose to fall upon their enemies."

In case of encountering superior forces, Rogers were to wait for evening before attacking, "so the enemy will not know your numbers, and if you are repulsed, your retreat will be favored by darkness."

They were told to scout around an encampment before leaving it, to make sure no enemy had approached during the night.

They were ordered not to cross rivers by regular ferds, never to return to their base by regular roads, always to choose evening for an attack by water, so to escape observation.

"Such," wrote Rogers, "are the rules to be observed in the ranging service."

There are, however, a thousand occurrences that might make it necessary to depart from them, and to put other arts and stratagems in practice, in which cases every man's reason and judgment must be his guide; and to do this properly, he must preserve firmness and presence of mind on every occasion."

Men Hand-Picked

So Rogers "enlisted none as Rangers but such as were used to traveling and hunting and in whose courage and fidelity I could confide." In the misty dark of early evening he packed his men in whaleboats and set off silently for an objective 20 miles, 40 miles, 200 miles away. When daylight came, no sign of those boats could be seen by the sharpest enemy eye. In winter storms, when same men were huddled over their fires, the Rangers slung snowshoes on their backs, fastened skates to their boots, and emerged from the whirling snowflakes without a sound to deal an icy death of men who thought themselves safe.

Tough enemies, Rogers argued, can't be appeased by anything except greater toughness. He set out one cold January day, with 74 rangers and was intercepted by a superior force of 250 French and Indians surrounded the Rangers, killed and wounded a dozen of them, smashed Rogers' hand and wrist with a bullet, and demanded the surrender of the detachment.

"They used," Rogers wrote, "many arts and stratagems to induce us to submit, sometimes threatening us with severity if we refused; assuring us that they expected a large reward for our pieces without mercy; at other times flattering and cajoling us, declaring it was a pity so many brave men should be lost; that we should, upon surrender, be treated with the greatest compassion and kindness; calling me by name, they gave me the strongest assurances of their esteem; but no one being disarmed, by promises, we determined to keep our ground as long as there were two left to stand by each other."

In the night Rogers picked up his wounded and fought his way to safety. Twenty of his 74 men were killed, but he killed 111 French and Indians.

At 7 to 1 Odds

Rogers' Rangers fought the battle on snowshoes against enemy forces outnumbering them seven to one. On March 6th, 1759, with the thermometer below zero and four feet of snow on the ground, he and over 100 Rangers marched 30 miles in one day to destroy enemy work parties, fought three skirmishes, accomplished their objective, and returned to camp with a loss of only three men—though many froze their feet. Later that same year he and two hundred of his Rangers made the great Ranger raid that wiped out the Indian town of St. Francis—a march of some 400 miles through the trackless swamps of Canada with no provisions except the bag of meal that every Ranger carried tied to his belt.

There was something elemental about Rogers and his Rangers—

Move To Aid War Production With Accident Cut is Launched in Ohio

H. J. BARBER.

Barber, of Cleveland, president of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., has accepted the leadership in a statewide movement to speed vital war production by reducing accidents, Judge J. E. Skeel, president of the Ohio State Safety Council, announced in Cleveland today.

Barber is chairman of a committee of prominent Ohio business and industrial leaders formed to assure Ohio's participation in an intensified accident prevention program inaugurated by the National Safety Council, aided by the war production fund to conserve manpower in response to an appeal by President Roosevelt.

Judge Skeel said the program's objective is to reduce all accidents interfering with war production and the National Safety Council is mobilizing its resources to reduce accidents in war production areas, and prevent accidents among other population elements where needless deaths and injuries indirectly handicap the war effort.

Calls Situation Critical.

"With serious manpower shortages in many war industries, the accident situation has become critical," Mr. Barber declared. "Last year, 112,500 people—35,000 of them workers—died through accidents. Accidents were the first death cause among all men of military age. The national economy lost 480,000,000 man days of production time and four billion dollars in 1941 through accidental deaths, injuries and property damage. That lost manpower could have produced all necessary materials for, and built, 23,000 heavy bombers or 300,000 military tanks.

"Since the war began, the vaunted Nazi Luftwaffe has killed 13,300 English civilians in mass air raids. But, in a single year, we killed 112,500 Americans through accidents alone.

"As a key state in war production, Ohio must lead in this movement to stop the drain on our manpower and material caused by preventable accidents. In this one state accidents killed 6,053 persons in 1941. Our death rate of 87.8 fatalities per hundred thousand inhabitants is the highest among major industrial states."

Marion in List.

The Ohio program provides for expanding the work of the Ohio State Safety Council with provision for increasing effectiveness of existing organizations in Cleveland, Toledo and Columbus. Those to be established in Cincinnati and Akron will expand. Part-time council organizations now operating or to be established in Dayton, Youngstown, Canton, Springfield, Hamilton, Portsmouth, Zanesville, Warren, Steubenville, Mansfield, Marion, Newark, Middletown and Sandusky will expand to meet war production needs.

Competent authorities say that with organizational facilities now available, the program can reasonably be expected to effect a minimum annual saving of 20,000 lives; 800,000 injuries to workers and 86,000,000 man-days of production time.

To accomplish this, it is estimated that the program will require $5,000,000 over the next two years, with Ohio's share estimated at $400,000. Mr. Barber's committee will obtain financial support of the program by Ohio Business and Industrial concerns through voluntary subscriptions.

DRASTIC TAX LAWS COMING

Public Warned To Prepare for New Legislation Early in 1943.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Government economists warned the public today to prepare for drastic tax and savings legislation early in 1943.

Such steps, they said, were almost inevitable in connection with the stabilization of farm prices and wages which President Roosevelt has announced will be undertaken soon.

One economist, Prof. Alvin H. Hansen of Harvard University, who is a special consultant of the federal reserve board on inflation and other matters, put it this way:

"We are piling up an avalanche of purchasing power and we ought to be building a dam to hold it. I think the pending tax bill (about $8,300,000,000 of new taxes) ought to be passed as soon as possible and about in January we ought to be drafting much steeper taxes, compulsory savings and other measures."

A treasury expert, who declined to be quoted, said, "wages and farm price stabilization, taxes, savings, price ceilings, rationing are all necessary to prevent inflation, which means a rise in the cost of living. If the President puts the emphasis at the moment on wages and farm prices, don't get the idea that the other things won't get attention, too."

From the budget bureau, came this reminder: "Every 30 days you are spending more money than the government ever spent before in any previous 30 days in history."

This can't go on indefinitely without some steps to prevent all this money being used to bid up the cost of living."

Professor Hansen suggested the problem of keeping down the cost of living could be divided, roughly, into two parts.

One, to hold down the actual cost of goods. Stabilizing wages and farm prices, he explained, fits into this effort.

The second would be to hold down the quantity of money or purchasing power. This can be done by spending for goods, because people with surplus money are apt to bid up prices, regardless of costs.

Taxes, war bonds and other savings divert extra money which might be used to bid up prices.

No ready-made tax and savings schemes were offered by the economists, but under one plan they discussed a fixed percentage of everybody's income would be taken by the government, part of the money being credited to taxes and the other part to war bonds redeemable after the war.

Insurance Coverage Asked on Ride-Sharing

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today asked all companies writing automobile insurance to protect their policyholders participating in ride-sharing plans.

"Since participation by car owners is in the interest of the war effort," Henderson wrote the companies, "the office of price administration believes participating car owners should lose no part of the coverage afforded them by their automobile liability insurance (bodily injury and property damage)."

Some companies, Henderson said, have construed liability policies written by them on private cars to be unaffected by bona fide participation in ride-sharing plans, even though they involved agreements to share expenses.

Officer Commissions
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—The navy has granted officer commissions to 66,906 men since enactment of the draft law on Aug. 16, 1940, and 55,658 of these have been appointments from civilian life to the naval reserve.

During the same two year period there were 30,632 officer promotions in the navy.

These statistics were sent to congress from the navy department in response to an inquiry from Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, who today a number of members of congress and civilians have mounted the information from him.

The same information has been asked of the army, but has not been reported.

BATTLESHIP IOWA CALLED BEST AFLOAT

Huge Ship Launched Months Ahead of Schedule.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Ralph A. Bard, assistant secretary of the navy, declared at the launching of the new battleship Iowa, "months ahead of schedule" today that the ship could "fire faster and further than any other ship afloat."

In an address prepared for delivery at the launching in the Brooklyn navy yard, Bard said

America's present enemies "have never fashioned such a weapon as this ship. This is no mere ship, you have turned out today," he added. "It is a tool with which America's future will be written on the pages of history."

The Iowa, he said, would take her place "in America's mighty 7-ocean post-war navy to help insure as long as our guns will fire—a lasting and honorable peace, min freedom and decency for all."

Louis Scherff

IT WAS our privilege to have had a close personal acquaintance with Louis Scherff, former Marion mayor who died yesterday, and we regarded him as one of Marion's most interesting and remarkable men. This, we feel sure, also expresses the opinion of all residents of the city who knew him and the record of his life.

And there were many who knew him—in fact about everybody in Marion did during the years of his greatest activity in the community, and to all he was "Louie" Scherff, a name which testified to his popularity.

Although he started his career with only a rudimentary education, Mr. Scherff acquired a store of knowledge and learning that made him one of the city's best informed residents. He did this through constant reading and study which extended through the years and continued until the final period of his life. There was virtually no topic of importance with which he was unfamiliar and upon which he could not discourse clearly and convincingly. He was in many respects a philosopher, and much inspiration could be gained from hearing him voice his views on life, humanity and the problems involved in this broad theme.

He was able to do this with utmost effectiveness, for he was gifted with fluency of speech and expression out of the ordinary. As may be assumed, he was a conversationalist far above the average and a public speaker always able to contribute something worthwhile to any program.

All this, coupled with his popularity, eventually brought him a call to public office. It was when he was employed as a blacksmith with the Huber Manufacturing Co. that he became a candidate for mayor of the city, and he was elected for two terms. There were trying problems and complications during those years but he disposed of them wisely and was credited with a successful administration.

That, however, was his only experience in elective public office, not because the people were unwilling to have him continue in their service, but because he preferred private life. His years after that were passed in the way he enjoyed most—reading, studying, meeting people and talking with them.

Yes, a most interesting and remarkable man was Louis Scherff, and as such he will occupy a distinctive place in Marion's history. It's not likely the future will produce his counterpart, for now colleges and other institutions of higher learning are depended upon for imparting knowledge such as he acquired through his own efforts and application. That is the best way to an education, unquestionably, but probably even the most erudite professors can't achieve some results for a student that the student can gain for himself.

Hopes and Realities

THE CIVILIAN mind always hopes for the best and the trained military mind prepares for the worst. The armchair strategist sees the enemy cumbering whenever our side meets with any kind of success, and the trained fighting man takes an immediate advantage as an opportunity to prepare for some new blow.

Hitler's easy successes in the days of Munich and in the first year after the war spread to England came because these two forms of thought were scrambled. Chamberlain, who should have had the military point of view, was a civilian hoping for the best when he met Hitler. The French hoped that the Maginot line was impregnable, the British hoped that the desert would stop the Axis from Egypt, we hoped that conversations in Washington would satisfy the little brown men and Pearl Harbor was the result. Just a little more of the military way of thinking and a little less of the civilian optimism might have given the Japanese a vastly different reception on Dec. 7.

Only Josef Stalin kept the two forms of thought properly differentiated. While he signed his non-aggression pact with Hitler and hoped, no doubt, that it would be effective, he nevertheless prepared for the worst that Hitler could give and when it came the result of Stalin's foresight stunned the world, including Hitler.

Military men of the United Nations have come around to the military point of view. They can't afford to be optimistic even when things look bright because the worst may be just around the corner. It is a good thing for civilians to keep hoping, for without hope there could be no morale, but it is a good thing to lay aside the rose colored glasses once in a while.

It's bad business, to think that this thing will be over quickly and easily.

Eventual victory? Assuredly, else life would scarcely be worth while. But victory by the long, hard and sacrificial way which has no place for the man and woman who sits back and dreams of some quick and miraculous triumph. Minutes of this kind are bought with the blood of the fighting men and the sweat and the determination and the faith of the civilians.

STRANGE SITUATION

Another nice thing about the army is over two big Chicago hotels in just those days occupy the rooms won't be expected to top Indianapolis News.

News Behind the News

War Labor Board Faces Tough Problem in General Motors Wage Case.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Members of the war labor board have been testing out what will be their fate if the board is to be reorganized.

After laying down the strenuous yardstick of the cost of living index for labor wage increases, the board now finds the first violation of its own principle coming from its own panel board in the General Motors wage case.

It is enough to make a board member feel something when you consider that they went to all the trouble in the little steel case to tell labor that increases would be granted only to the extent that previous increases have failed to make up for a 15 per cent swelling in the cost of living since January, 1941.

That policy had been strictly followed by the board until its G. M. panel came in the other day with a few formula.

Basis of Recommendation
The panel recommended an increase based, not on the cost of living, but on what Henry Ford's workers were making across the street.

If the panel had followed the board formula, it would have suggested an increase of 1 1/2 cents an hour, because General Motors workers have had the rest of their 15 per cent hike since January 1941. (The company claims their wages have been increased 54 per cent since the war started in 1919.) But the panel recommended an increase of 5 cents an hour, simply because Ford's rates are higher.

That set the board to deliberating. It faced the alternatives of stepping down its own panel, or its own policy.

If it was the first to violate its yardstick, there was strong prospect it might lose the confidence of the country in the muddling way its predecessors have done. If it overruled its panel, it would have to face crossfire from the CIO. What to do?

Frankly, most of the board members would like first to get Paul McNutt's right hand man, Fowler Harper, who was chairman of the panel, alone on a dark night. It was Mr. Harper who cast the deciding vote to give the board its perplexity.

One other panel member was a CIO man, Patrick Fagan, who naturally wanted a top increase, and the third was William H. Doran of the Metropolitan Edison Co., a business man and employer representative who wanted a 1 1/2 per cent increase.

McNutt is Target
Not only for this but for other reasons, Mr. McNutt and his men around town have lately been taking some strong sideline casting from some very high administration officials.

The general assumption is that Mr. McNutt is running for the presidency in 1944, and that he might have a chance if his manpower commission and various other enterprises would stop making a decision every now and then which can be justified only on the ground of political expediency.

For a long time he was looked on mainly as a handsome fellow, and he ran for the Democratic presidential nomination last time.

large y on that ground. Now, after a year with him a while, the idea of McNutt's being a smart, but just a little too smart on the political side.

Perhaps they also mean he is too smart for his own good, as any 1944 nominee is likely to need White House approval, and getting the labor board into an intricate rearrangement is not going to help him that way.

Waiting for Election
Finance Chairman George gets angry when anyone says his tax bill will not get through before the November elections, but that seems to be about the case for sure now, even though Mr. George will not agree.

The bill will probably pass the senate in October, but will be sent to conference where it will be buried quietly in obscurity, while the ballots are counted, then to be resurrected and the final draft written after everybody is re-elected.

Dropped faster, but for the same reason, is the proposal to draft 18 and 19 year olds. In fact it was dropped before being taken up.

No bill has been proposed for such a draft. Clearly the army wants one, but may be conscious of what is supposed to be the delicate political situation involved.

It is evident the military authorities want a much larger army than the 4,000,000 men Mr. Roosevelt says we have now. In the last war, the height of our army strength, at the armistice, was 3,631,000, of whom, less than 2,000,000 were in France.

Wholly unofficial talk has speculated that six, eight or ten millions might be needed this time, or possibly twice as many as are in the army now. Specific plans naturally are of a military nature, but the speculation suggests this war may require an army twice as large as last time.

Therefore, the 18 and 19 year olds must be called, and the only question seems to be whether something is done about it before or after election.

This shows the relative sizes of the United States of America and the United States of Brazil.

Wide World Features

BRAZIL, the first South American country to declare war on the Axis (Japan excluded) is expected to lend material and moral aid of definite proportions to the Allied forces.

This huge Portuguese speaking nation, biggest of the South American republics, is larger in size than the United States by approximately 250,000 square miles. Brazil has a population of about 45,000,000, borders on every South American country but Chile and Ecuador and has a coast line of almost 5,000 miles to guard.

Her army consists of 100,000 regulars, with 300,000 in reserve. Navy has two battle-ships, two cruisers, 11 destroyers and four submarines, in addition to several smaller craft. Brazil had a peacetime air force of 8,500 men, is ## rapidly expanding that service

Brazil entered World War only South American nation to do so for same reason it came into present conflict: ruthless German submarine attack on Brazil's sea-lanes. Brazil's World War contribution consisted of a fleet detachment sent to European waters, a medical mission and a number of aviators. Biggest part was played on the food front.

Top Brazilian President Getulio Vargas, definitely anti-Axis. Brazil's immediate problem is to keep a wary eye on strong Axis nationalist groups who have settled there. Brazil has about 4,000,000 residents of German or Italian extraction, 200,000 Japanese. The latter represent the largest Japanese minority planted anywhere in the world.

THE WALKING DELEGATE

Today and Tomorrow

President in War Time Regarded As An Institution Rather Than a Personality.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT MAY be useful to list some of the main subjects that have to be dealt with in Washington:

1. There is a running controversy between the armed services, more particularly the army, and the civilians who are supposed to control and manage war production. In this controversy the weakness of the civilians is that they have been too slow and too soft in imposing sacrifices: that they have been badly organized and inadequately staffed to exercise the power delegated to them; not clear-sighted and forehand enough to have insisted months ago upon bringing requirements and resources into balance. The civilian position has been shaken badly, not because the armed services have "militarist" ambitions, but because the civilians have not exercised their proper authority decisively and efficiently.

2. In regard to the general conduct of our domestic economy—in the field of taxes and war financing, price and wage control, rationing, and the conservation of rubber, fuel, and the like—the existence of so many independent agencies responsible to no one but the President has promoted the pressure groups and the politicians who pander to them. Here again the weakness of the civilian authority in exercising its powers has caused a struggle for power.

At the origin of both controversies we find, when we look the same fundamental cause: that Mr. Roosevelt has not recognized that the war powers of the President are so vast that they cannot be exercised by a man—that they must be exercised by an institution. We speak of "the President" and we think of Mr. Roosevelt. But in fact the President is the central organ of war government, and what "the President" does must in fact be, not what one man thinks and does, but what many men acting collectively think and do.

An Institution
The President, as an institution rather than as a personality, ought in the usages of our political system to be the President and his cabinet. That ought to be the central organ of war government. All the super bodies which are set up and then, usually set down again are attempts to create a synthetic substitute for the fact that though Mr. Roosevelt has a cabinet, he neither can nor wants to use it.

The reason he cannot use it is that with only a very few exceptions, his cabinet is not composed of men equal to the demands of the war. Therefore, he has set up outside his cabinet men who exercise more real authority than most of the members of his cabinet. Mr. Nelson, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Davis play a far greater role in the conduct of the war economy than all but one or two of the official cabinet. Yet these free-wheeling officials, lacking a true status, dependent on personal relationships, are in a weaker position than they should be when it comes to dealing with the permanent government—with the old departments and with congress and with the President himself.

War Cabinet Urged

We shall muddle along—perhaps successfully and then again perhaps not—until Mr. Roosevelt realizes that the President is an institution which can be administered in wartime only by himself, surrounded, supported and reinforced by a war cabinet composed of men who have both the titles of authority and the realities of power. The final responsibility is, of course, Mr. Roosevelt's. But he cannot discharge that responsibility except on the advice and through the acts of men who share the responsibility.

The present system will not work. The present system which is composed of the men with the titles who lack power, the men with the nominal powers who lack the titles and in among them the men who have neither titles nor authority, but simply personal influence at the White House.

A system of this kind is bound to be weak and is bound to undermine the prestige of civilian government. The things men complain about—the encroachment of the military or civilian authority, the pressure of the pressure groups and the general low esteem into which politicians have fallen—these are the consequences of the same central weakness. They come from the refusal of the President to make a genuine war cabinet for reaching his decisions and the enforcement of discipline.

the war. Therefore, he has set up outside his cabinet men who exercise more real authority than most of the members of his cabinet. Mr. Nelson, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Davis play a far greater role in the conduct of the war economy than all but one or two of the official cabinet. Yet these free-wheeling officials, lacking a true status, dependent on personal relationships, are in a weaker position than they should be when it comes to dealing with the permanent government—with the old departments and with congress and with the President himself.

Thus the permanent government lacks real power and the improvised agencies lack the titles of authority: the result is that exceedingly unhealthy condition which is known in Washington as "the Palace"—the fact that there are especially trusted individuals who have, sporadically, enormous influence without official responsibility.

Safety Rules for Horse Chauffeur

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—All horse-laughing aside, the Greater New York Safety Council has up a safety code of suggested rules for drivers.

Always address your horse by name. Otherwise he may respond to anyone's "giddyap." Humane methods are just plain horse-sense. Watch out for even minor symptoms of ill health. Protect horse from heat with fly nets and hats and from cold with blankets. Have shoes with proper all-weather tread shoes. Use a special water pail, but do not water or him when he is too warm.

Drive close to right-hand curb and be wary of clear before passing another vehicle. Obey all traffic signs and signals as you if driving an automobile. Use conventional signals. Do not "ride" street car tracks.

While driving, sit on the left-hand seat in driving in which vehicle is moving. Concentrate only on driving.

For night driving, your vehicle should have lights, front and rear.

Check harness regularly, as well as vehicle sure brake is in good condition.

Tanguay, 64, Aims at Comeback

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD—Eva Tanguay, the bold, frizzle-topped "I don't care girl" of the '20s of vaudeville, is 64 years old and still hopes for a comeback.

Not to her $7,000-a-week whirlwind act, she explains, but just to "sing a little that may bring a little joy and happiness to these war-torn days."

But she has a long way to go. For four she has been bedridden with painful arthritis. "Today I am fighting harder than ever back on my feet," she said. "I know I can come about. I have the will to live."

One of the wildest heydays the stage has known, the Eva of an earlier day in blonde ringlets and kicked her silks—legals to such effect that she accumulated $100,000.

She lost most of it in the 1929 crash—some time there were published reports she was destitute.

However, she is now occupying a comfortable, palm-shaded cottage court—apparently not in want.

TO USE CAMPS FOR DETENTION QUARTERS
CCC Buildings To Be Used for Quarantine Hospital.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, assistant director of defense health and welfare, reported today that former civilian conservation corps camps in 20 states will be converted into detention centers and quarantine hospitals for venereal-infected girls.

He said each camp hospital will accommodate from 100 to 300 girls, who after being cured, will be aided by the government in finding legitimate jobs.

In response to "urgent appeals" pointing out that overcrowded detention quarters are impeding adequate treatment, the government will make more than 25 camps available to state public health departments.

Dodgers' National League Lead Shrinks As Cardinals Score 2-1 Win

Cards Need Fourth Straight Win Today To Challenge Brooklyn Lead.

By The Associated Press

THE St. Louis Cardinals have shown the rest of the National League they aren't kidding about making a finish fight for the pennant the Brooklyn Dodgers confidently thought they had cinched.

A tremendous stake rested on today's twilight finale of the four-game series, because the Red Birds needed to take it to get the Dodgers really tottering. But win or lose the Cardinals are making good their truculent claims that they would battle till the schedule runs out.

A few weeks ago Brooklyn had a 10-game lead, but the Cardinals swept the first three installments of the four-game series with the National League champions in St. Louis to whittle this down to 4½.

Waging Lone Fight

Another St. Louis victory would shrink this to 2½ games and then throw the race wide open. A triumph for the Dodgers would leave the Brooky with a comfortable 5½-game lead.

The Cardinals are waging a lone fight, for although they have won 11 and lost eight against the Dodgers this year, no other club has given Brooklyn as much as an even battle.

This has not daunted the Red Birds, however, as they proved by capturing a second straight 2-1 extra-inning decision over the Dodgers yesterday for Johnny Beasley's 16th success.

Like the senior circuit's red hot Cardinals, the Boston Red Sox also still have time to cause some commotion in the American league.

Joe Cronin's crew has won nine straight games and 15 of the last 16 to shave the lead of the New York Yankees to 7½ games.

Yankees Lose 5-3

Meanwhile the Yankees dropped a 5-3 affair to the Chicago White Sox, who in their final appearance of the year in New York won their first game in the stadium.

In the only other American league action, the Detroit Tigers threatened Cleveland's berth in the first division by taking a double-header from the Philadelphia Athletics, 1-0 and 4-2.

This lifted the Tigers within two games of the Indians, who have lost 14 contests while winning four.

The third-place New York Giants of the National league snapped their five-game losing streak by battering the Cincinnati Reds for 15 hits and an 11-2 triumph, credited to Bill Lohrmann, the nemesis who has beaten Cincinnati five times this year.

The Phils and Chicago Cubs divided a double-header with the tallenders taking the first game, 3-2, in 11 innings and the Cubs capturing the nightcap, 3-0.

BEARS' COACH SURE OF WIN OVER STARS

Halas Confident Chicago Will Keep Record Perfect.

CHICAGO—Chicago's big bad Bears, the professionals who never have lost a football game in all star competition at Soldier field, are taking every precaution in preparing for their fourth venture against the collegians Friday night.

For one thing, Owner-Coach George Halas has decided to keep his starting line-up a secret until game time.

For another, he has Clark Shaughnessy, his frequent collaborator on T formation plays and a precision expert, supervising drills at the Bears' Delafield, Wis., camp.

Most of all Halas has had the Bears getting in plenty of defensive ticks. The Bears ordinarily don't worry too much about what the other team is going to do. Their tactics are based on maintaining possession of the ball most of the time. Defensive drill was designed to stop, among others, Bill Dudley of Virginia, who ran wild in all star practice last week.

"I think everyone will agree," Halas said, "that the all stars have superior material this year. They have another advantage because their coach is Bob Zuppke, a master at inspiring athletes. As for the Bears, I'm not telling any secret when I say we're not quite as strong as we were last year, although I'm not complaining, you understand."

In fact, Halas ventured the opinion that his Bears would maintain their undefeated record in Friday's game, although he said he did not believe the margin of difference would be as great as last year when the Bears won, 37-13. The Bears also triumphed in 1935, 5 to 0, but in the all star inaugural game, in 1934, they were held to a scoreless tie.

The ninth annual contest, to be played for army and navy relief, already is assured of a record attendance of 101,000.

GOES TO BAT FOR UNCLE SAM

Domine DiMaggio, hard-hitting Boston Red Sox centerfielder, joins the navy at Boston as a coxswain. He is seen taking the oath of allegiance from Lieut. George Powers Jr. Dom is the youngest of the trio of DiMaggio major league ball players. Joe is with the New York Yankees and Vince with the Pittsburgh Pirates. They are natives of San Francisco.

Marion county golfers still have until midnight Sunday in which to enter and qualify for the fourth annual Marion county open golf tournament. Play will begin Sept. 1 at the Marion Country club.

Howard Henry, chairman of the tourney committee, to-day announced that his committee would sponsor a women's county open if 12 or more women qualified. He said it would be impractical to hold a tourney if fewer than 12 women were to participate.

HAWKS SCORE 3 TO 0 WIN OVER FOSTORIA IN 6-INNING GAME

To Play Donkey Softball Game Friday with Lords Team.

Scoring three runs in the sixth inning, the Marion Hawks won a 3-0 decision over the Fostoria Red Flares in an Ohio State semi-pro league game last night at Fostoria. The game was called at the end of the sixth because of darkness. Bob Howison, ace Marion moundman, and Van Camp, the Fostoria hurler, each allowed only two hits in the six-inning route.

The win left the Hawks in third place in the Ohio State loop with eight wins and five defeats.

STANDINGS

| Team     | W. | L. | Pct. |
|----------|----|----|------|
| Fostoria | 11 | 2  | .846 |
| Fremont  | 8  | 2  | .800 |
| Marion   | 8  | 5  | .615 |
| Gallion  | 7  | 6  | .538 |
| Tiffin   | 5  | 9  | .357 |

Fostoria with 11 wins in 13 starts leads the loop. Fremont, winner of the first round play, is second with eight wins and two defeats.

The Hawks will switch to softball for a Friday night engagement at Lincoln park with the Lords Jewels team. The two clubs will play a five-inning game, preceding a donkey contest.

In a donkey game every player, except the pitcher and catcher, are astride donkeys. When the ball is hit the batter must ride the donkey around the bases. The fielders must ride to the spot where the ball is, climb from his mount, field the ball and climb back on his donkey.

Eleven qualifying scores have been turned in to date at both courses. Those qualifying and their scores are: Bob Baker, 79; Gerald Farlow, 88; Howard Henry, 79; Robert Graham, 76; Judge H. S. Young, 88; Don Preuninger, 87; Harold Henry, 100 and B. H. Buettlin, 82. Charles Cupani, Newt Alward and Charles Morbit have also qualified but have not posted their scores.

John Rice, three time winner and present defending champion, was automatically eligible to compete without qualifying.

Kalimkoff, Madsen To Meet in Armory Wrestling Feature

Jack Bloomfield, Wild Bill Zimovich Matched in Semi-Final Bout; Olsen Venable To Appear.

Two wrestling promoters, Les Fishbein and Axel Madsen of Denmark, competing two of wrestling promoter Les Fishbein's leading mat performers are scheduled to tangle in a return match in the two-man managers bout on the 27th Armory mat.

Several weeks ago the pair were matched in a 30-minute preliminary bout which ended in a draw, but at the time was termed as one of the best summer nights.

Madsen first appeared here last winter and since then he has been one of the leading performers in the city. He started out here as a palm lighter only, but his great catches have made him a popular card as well as a tough competitor.

Kalimkoff, once termed the "Mad Russian," has turned in a long list of brilliant fights here. Likewise, he has become one of the strong favorites with local wrestling customers.

Wild Bill Zimovich, once one of promoter Fishbein's top attractions, will reappear tonight for a four-hour semi-final scrap with rugged Jack Bloomfield, New York City ace. Bloomfield put on a brilliant display of wrestling ability two weeks ago in disposing of Mark Angelo in record time.

Zimovich is definitely one of the game's most colorful fighters. As present he is shaping a great record in the Columbus ring, meeting and winning over many of the top mid-western stars.

The one-fall 30-minute preliminary bout will bring together Sator Olsen, the Swedish star, and Billy Venable, Dallas, Texas ace. Olsen recently broke even in a series of fights here with Lee Jensen.

TRIBE KEEPS BER IN FIRST DIVISION AFTER LOSS TO BOS

Fifth-Place Tigers Win To Trail Cleveland by Two Games.

By The Associated Press
BOSTON, Aug. 27—Baltimore's first three games of the season, the first road trip, the last Indians today were fairly close to the season for the first time since early weeks of the season.

Manager Lou Boudreau, who has asked no more than the club finish over its four teams, but a 4-1 loss to the Red Sox yesterday left the fifth-place Detroit Tigers who won both ends of a double-header at Philadelphia.

Tomorrow the Indians will begin a two-game series in the tough Yankees.

With the rest of the American league clubs idle today, Detroit, seeking his 15th victory, has a chance to boost the Indians' lead in the final series with Boston. But he has the redoubtable Tex Rickard, who has won 17 against the Red Sox, in the lineup.

The Tribe's lone run came in the first inning with two outs. Ken Keltner singled, stole and scored on Jeff Heath's error.

Mel Harder, who in seven nights yielded seven of eight hits, was charged with loss.

Football in High School

IN MY collection of injuries due to playing football in the season of 1941, which I tabulate below, I omit such minor things as bloody nose, black and blue eyes, sprains, back wrenches, cuts, bruises, being knocked unconscious, charley horses, etc. To get into this list you have to break a bone or rupture a spleen, or be paralyzed, or something really noteworthy.

In all I have a total of 3,883 injuries of this kind, of which 1,067 occurred in college players, 2,426 in high school players, 259 on sandlots, 25 in grade school, and 114 miscellaneous.

Note once more the preponderance of high school injuries which supports my contention that boys of high school age are not physically matured enough to stand the gaff, at least until they are seniors.

To tick off some items: ankle fractures—college 126, high school 225; brain injury—only in high school; 4 (concussions not counted); eye injuries (serious)—college 15, high school 18; ruptured kidneys—college 3, high school 11; fractured leg—college 160, high school 303; dislocated knee—college 215, high school 328; fractured pelvis—college 1, high school 4; abdominal rupture—high school 8; spine injury (serious)—college 2, high school 30.

A few unusual ones were: ruptured spleen (had to be removed), I crushed larynx when a player stepped on his friend's neck, I tetanus, I lung collapse and 20 time burns.

The coaches say they protect their players and do not send them into a game unless they are in perfect physical condition. How trustworthy such statements are can be judged from the following quotations:

From an Ohio newspaper, Nov. 14, 1941: "Star halfback C. was helped off the field in the first half with an injured knee and carried from the field in the second half with an injured knee."

From a Texas newspaper, Oct. 21, 1941: "He had to play one game recently with sponge rubber and tape protecting from injuries on his legs, another sponge covering a back injury, a knee brace on a weak knee, and tape wrapped around a pair of ankles that were subject to a breakdown at any time."

To show how football fits a man to serve his country I quote: "L. J. has been forced to give up his Army flying career because of physical inability to stand high altitudes. A nose injury suffered when he played football," etc.

What is the excuse for all this death, suffering and disability that compares with a war? It doesn't "make men" as the coaches argue. It isn't good sport. It has become one of the stupidest games on earth for the spectator.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I SAW that Mary was tremendously excited and thrilled by the real life melodrama in which she was playing so important a role, so I played up to her.

"You know where Steve has hidden the paper my father wants?" I repeated excitedly. "Yes," she said, imitating the conception of a New England spinster's monosyllabic talk as interpreted by cinema character actresses. "I know exactly where it is, and if he doesn't change his hiding place before he gets up here, I may be able to get it. But it's the fear of his changing his cache that's worrying me."

"Then my father would better hurry," I said, and over the phone I received his promise to come immediately.

When he came he went directly to the point.

"Where did he hide the paper?" he asked.

"In his shoe," Mary returned promptly. "I didn't see him put it there, of course, but I'm sure there's where it is."

He turned to the telephone, asked for a room number and spoke quickly:

"Please attend to that laundry for me," he said. "Pay special attention to the socks," he said, and I knew he had used a code of some sort.

"What did you see?" he then asked Mary.

"First, I saw another man slip a paper to him."

"Ah-hi!" my father said softly. "Go on, please."

In Handed a Paper

"Steve excused himself and went to the back of the restaurant," Mary continued. "With my pocket mirror and two big ones on the walls, I could lamp Steve's every movement. I saw the other man walk past Steve as if he didn't know him, and pretend to bump against him. I don't believe anybody else saw him slip the paper to Steve, for it was a mighty neat piece of work. If I hadn't been watching for just such a stunt, I'd never have caught it."

"Yes, yes," my father said impatiently. "I can well understand your excitement. When did you first notice his shoes?"

"In my little mirror, on his way back to the table," she answered. "He'd been watching for him to leave the men's wash-room, for I didn't know but he might run out on me and send word by the waiter that he'd been called away. That's been done before, you know, but never to me."

Her flashing eyes emphasized her words. I could not imagine any man daring to subject Mary to such humiliation.

"While Steve was walking to carbon dioxide snow be helpful to bring about the disappearance of a birthmark known as the 'port wine' variety?"

Answer: Yes.

ward the table I first caught the idea," she said. "I've generally studies along like the band leader of a regiment. This time as kept looking down at his shoes, then up again, as if he hadn't meant the glances, but couldn't help himself, if you know what I mean."

My father and I both nodded assent.

"Yes, we know," I said, hoping by hurrying her to ease my father's tension.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, Aug. 28

A DAY of outstanding, possibly dramatic and spectacular events is forecast by the lunar and mutual aspects of major planets. Excitement, commotion, disruption and upheaval may descend from hidden, surprising and unexpected sources, with definite demand for exceptional balance, calm and resourcefulness. If a splendid opportunity, of great scope and possibilities, is to be firmly grasped and engineered to high goals.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of remarkable, spectacular, intriguing and long-lingering circumstances, which must be bravely, decisively and crushingly manipulated if a very real, desirable, and worthwhile opportunity for high achievement, honors, expansive and far-reaching good fortune and happy destiny are to be attained. But this will take great skill, ingenuity, acumen and sagacity, as well as alertness to deception, fraud, underhand and treacherous attack, both open and subtle.

A child born on this day may have many practical as well as exceptional talents and abilities, with ingenuity, originality and independence, all of which it may need to cope with strange events.
